

Figure S9. Allelic heterozygosity in C. chinensis. Female transcripts from X chromosome are overwhelmingly heterozygous, similar with autosomal transcripts, indicating that the X chromosome in females is biallelically expressed. Male transcripts from X chromosome are overwhelmingly homozygous, indicating that the X chromosome in males is monoallelically expressed.